Bodie's Triple in the Seventh Scores Winning Run for Locals

Ping's Three-Bagger, Which Sends Pipp Across, Decides Game; Tobin Slams Out Homer Off Mays in the First Inning; Score, 5 to 4

By Charles A. Taylor

San Francisco Pizzola, alias Ping Bodie, 30,000 hats, almost were doffed and crushed to you at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon. Some hundreds of the hats mentioned were the crowning glory of the fair sex present, and these for obvious reasons were neither doffed nor crushed, and that's why the display of headgear was not unanimous in that hysterical, historical seventh inning when your triple to right center beat the Browns, 5 to 4.

It was a see-saw affair, that game of yesterday between the Yankees and the Browns, and until the seventh, when Ping Bodie, to whom this tale has already been dedicated, smashed his triple into the face of Old Emergency, there was no telling what would happen. In fact it was the general gossip about the stands and bleachers that the game showed strong symptoms of extra innings.

The two teams were a tie at 4 all when the curtain rose on the "stretching" act of the drama. Captain Peckinpah succumbed on a grounder to short. Babe Ruth fooled the St. Louis outfielders, who were nestling beneath the eaves of the various fences, by meeting the ball easily and gently for a hit to right which netted him two bases under the circumstances.

Pipp rapped a grounder to Gerber at short and Ruth was caught at third on Gerber's toss to Ellerbe. That is, the umpire Nallin declared the Babe out despite his clever slide which apparently had gained him the base in safety. There was a prolonged kick, but the umpire, as usual, won despite the hoots and jeers and sneers fired at him from all quarters.

So there were two out and Pipp on first when Mr. Bodie pulled to the plate swinging the customary two bats. San Francisco Ping watched a ball and a strike pass by him without a tremor and then he landed on the third one for a drive that sailed between left and right for three bases and the ball game.

The illness of Bob Meusel, who was suddenly stricken with appendicitis yesterday morning, gave Ping his first opportunity in several days to start a game. He not only started this one. He finished it.

Tobin Gets Home Run

Each team scored a run in the opening inning. The first batter to get on base, hit the second ball pitched into the upper tier of the grand stand for one of those common, ordinary, every day homers. Gerber followed with a single off Ball's glove, and the Yankees were forced at second on Weitzel's attempted sacrifice bunt to Pipp. Williams drew a pass, but Severed did not to Ruth and Ellerbe forced Williams at second. Baker to left, Ruth to right, Peck fled out to left. Ruth tripled to the center field fence, scoring Ruth with the tying run. Pipp passed out, second to third, and Bodie walked. Baker's best was a fly into the hands of Williams.

The Browns took the lead in the third, when Ruth singled to right, a single by Tobin, sacrifice by Gerber and singles by Weitzel and Severed doing the damage.

The Yankees brought the game to the fourth by taking two runs after a bad throw by Gerber gave Bodie a life after Pipp had been tossed out by Shocker. Baker popped to Severed, Weitzel singled to right, and the Yankees doubled down the left field foul line, scoring Bodie and Ward.

The fifth inning was a repetition of the first, as each side again made a run. The Browns' rally, the outcome of a bunt by Tobin, Ward's slowness in covering first on Gerber's bunt and a single to left by Williams.

Ruth Purposely Passed

The Yanks filled the bags in their half, but could squeeze over only one. Ruth singled to right as a starter and raced to third on Peck's double along the left field foul line. Ruth was purposely passed, clogging the bases. Pipp fouled out to Ellerbe. Both scorers on Bodie's sacrifice of Ruth at second. Lee threw out Baker and a fine chance for a harvest was lost to the Huguenots.

Ward made a great stop of Peck's wild throw to first in the opening inning. Ward was covering the initial bag as the result of Weitzel's attempted sacrifice, which drew Pipp in.

Ruth and Bodie switched fields in the fourth inning.

In the third Weitzel scored all the way from first on Severed's single to center as the result of Bodie's slow sliding.

Babe Ruth saved a run in the sixth by an amazing catch of Shocker's line drive to left center. The ovation Babe received as he walked to the bench was just as boisterous as if he had made a home run.

Tobin made a home run and two singles in his first three appearances at the plate, but on his fourth try he expired on an easy grounder to Ward.

Manager Huggins was benched in the seventh inning by Umpire Nallin because the Miller kicked too strenuously on Nallin's call. Ruth out at third on Gerber's throw to Ellerbe.

Grimes Outpitches Jim Vaughn And Johnny Evers Gets Shock

Two Out in Third When Flatbushers Fall on Big Southpaw for 4 Runs

Special Correspondence of The Tribune

CHICAGO, June 5.—The Brooklyn Dodgers stretched their winning streak to four games out of the last five and went back into third place when they whipped the Cubs to-day, 5 to 3. They won their last two games in Boston and have won two out of three here.

Manager Johnny Evers flashed Hippo Jim Vaughn on the Dodgers this afternoon. That mountainous southpaw has got fat for several years by humbugging the Brooklyn team, but the tables were turned to-day. With two down in the third inning, Evers' men bunched two doubles and four singles without a break for four runs. Virgil Cheever went to the rescue and stopped the assault in the third, but was reached for a run on a single and double in the eighth.

Burling Grimes pitched the whole game for Brooklyn, but finished in a bad way. Turned over to Walter Miller, singled through the box and nearly broke Grimes' right hand against the right-hander Cheever and walked. Wallace Hood batted for Grimes in the ninth and grounded to Ray Grimes. Miller flied to Barber in the third and Vaughn threw out Burling Grimes. There the racket began. Olson doubled to right and scored on Johnson's double to center. Neis was given a single when Plack dropped his hard liner, after a long run, and Johnston scored. Wheat's single to center sent Neis to third.

Three Right Fielders in Game

Bernie Neis, a right-handed batter, started in right for Brooklyn against Southpaw Vaughn and made a hit and a run. Griffith batted in the seventh against the right-hander Cheever and walked. Wallace Hood batted for Grimes in the ninth and grounded to Ray Grimes. Miller flied to Barber in the third and Vaughn threw out Burling Grimes. There the racket began. Olson doubled to right and scored on Johnson's double to center. Neis was given a single when Plack dropped his hard liner, after a long run, and Johnston scored. Wheat's single to center sent Neis to third.

Warner Brings in Run

Ray Grimes opened the second for Chicago with a single past Johnston. Barber forced Ray and went to third on Sullivan's single to center. Warner scratched a slow hit to Johnston, scoring Barber.

Olson made a circus stop back of second in the sixth and threw out Cheever. Plack singled to Johnston and continued to second on Johnston's throw. Johnston's head, however, threw out Hollister. Plack going to third. Plack tallied when Johnston fumbled Terry's hard drive. Ray Grimes walked, but B. Grimes fanned Barber. Grimes' double, however, batting for Cheever in the eighth, doubled to left. He scored on Plack's single to right and Plack went to second on Hollister's single to center. Terry and Olson, who stopped on second, forcing Hollister, and threw to Koney, doubling up Terry. Ray Grimes was out, Koney to B. Grimes, and the Cubs won the game.

Blue Navy in All Starts So Far in Present Season Has Been Dismal Failure

Special Dispatch to The Tribune

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 5.—Guy Nickalls, the Yale crew coach, resigned to-day. He will not continue to direct the Eli crews in their preparations for their annual regatta with Harvard, but will probably return to England. The coaching of the crews has been turned over to James Cordery, a former English sculler and coach, who came here last fall to assist Nickalls.

Cordery has had charge of coaching the freshman, who defeated Cornell two weeks ago. The resignation of Nickalls was announced to-night by Professor Clarence Mendell, chairman of the Yale athletic council, with the approval of Fred Allen, chairman of the Yale rowing committee, and of Captain Steve Hord, of the crew.

The varsity crew, which Nickalls coached, has lost all its races this year, having been defeated by Princeton, Cornell, Penn and Columbia. Nickalls was dropped because the stroke which he taught was a loser.

He coached the Yale crews in 1914, 1915 and 1916, but was in the World War in 1917 and 1918 and did not return to Yale until 1920. Last year the Yale varsity crew, which he coached, lost its race to Harvard.

Cordery took the Yale rowing squad to its training camp at Gales Ferry this afternoon. Some of the oarsmen made the trip in their autos, but most of them went by train, arriving at Gales Ferry in time for dinner to-night. Their shells and coaching launches were shipped yesterday.

The Gleneagles course was opened to the public on June 1. It is situated near Perthshire, and it has been said that nature and man worked together in harmony to produce a course without rival. The King's course of 18 holes is 6,100 yards in length.
